our lices—every slave who may be captured by our soldiers or who may be found in any place occupied by our treops—is declared to be forever free. No preclamation of the Freedest is needed to give this law effect. It executes itself. It is to day the law of the land, and every slave, belonging to a Rebel master, is emitted to the benefit of its provisions. But so fast, therefore, as our similes move southward do they carry freedom with them. Slavery cannot exist in the water of our moldiers. The law is thorough, and takes immediate effect. On the 1st of July, 1863, all the slaves will be held to labor, but will be free. They will be held to labor, but will be at liberty to choose their own masters.
